

Family Commitment Form

Our program cannot succeed without your help. We ask your assistance in the following ways:

1. Please go through the program handbook with your student(s) before the first day of class.
2. It is necessary for the operation of this program that both tutors and parents make a commitment for the entire academic year. Therefore, all tuition and fees are non-refundable after July 1, 2022. Although late registration is possible through the summer, all checks collected at the time of late registration are non-refundable.
3. If a problem arises between your child and a tutor, or another student, please contact the tutor or parent first (Matthew 18:15). Many problems are the result of a misunderstanding and are easily resolved by talking. If you cannot resolve them in this manner, contact the director. Avoid participating in any gossip or criticism.
4. Please communicate with tutors in the least obstructive way. Use written communication whenever possible, and seek to be respectful of tutors personally, and of their time, especially on class days.
5. Conduct regular homeschooling duties and diligently prepare your students for class time, keeping in mind that we are NOT a school, but are here to serve the homeschooling community. Our partnership with you will only be successful if you stay connected and invest in your students at home.
6. Pray for our tutors and students. It is not easy to cover a lot of material in a short class time, but it is possible. Your prayers can help tutors know what to cover and help students understand.

We commit to be peacemakers in the community of GREYFRIARS CLASSICAL TUTORIALS. We will support the tutors and staff by encouraging our student(s) to obey classroom rules and will teach them to respect the other students, tutors and staff as well as the buildings and property at Resurrection Presbyterian Church. We also commit to our homeschooling duties and responsibilities, to participating in the community and fulfilling any volunteer jobs faithfully.
